Gail Harland is a woman that believed that marriage was forever, but that all changed when she gave her husband an ultimatum. They weren't really in love with each other and this led to her finding something different with a young man named Anthony. She wanted something physical, but he had this strong belief that was more old fashion than anything else. Gail suffered from a rare insomnia condition that allowed others to prey on it like it was a weakness. The new neighbor is going to test her sanity and give her reason to doubt herself. Only her best friend will help her to figure out the truth before it's too late. Is Gail to believe that Anthony is everything that he appears, or does there lurk something hidden within the silky words that come from his mouth?

Gail Harland found that her life was turned upside down by living alone for the first time in her life. She doesn't like that feeling, but the young man across the street has filled that void with his companionship and friendship. They both want something more, but they can't have that until the divorce is done and finished with. The arrival of the new neighbor was quite unexpected, but after that things began to escalate with one thing after another. The body upstairs was waiting to be discovered and the police were knocking on her door. She was terrified beyond words, but she had her friend Amber there to settle her down. They were going to have to play a game with a would be killer that was having too much fun at their expense.
